Policy on Photography before, during and after Retreats

Photography is not permitted before, during or after retreats, neither in the retreat centre nor in the surrounding environment. The retreat process requires that such distractions are avoided. In addition, it is discourteous to others.

At the end of the retreat there may be opportunity for a group photograph for those participants who agree to participate. There will also be opportunity for additional photography of the environment and of friends made during the retreat subject to the permission of those photographed. All photos taken before, during or after the retreat are subject to the privacy/confidentiality agreement of the retreat and should not be published on the web, social media or elsewhere without express permission of those appearing in the photographs.

If a retreatant ignores this policy, the retreatant will be asked to destroy all photos taken.
